

CDC's Center for State, Tribal, Local, and Territorial Support

Leadership Vacancy

Vacancy: Director, Office of Tribal Affairs and Strategic Alliances

The Center for State, Tribal, Local, and Territorial Support (CSTLTS) is currently seeking exceptional candidates for the position of Director, Office of Tribal Affairs and Strategic Alliances (OTASA). OTASA connects tribal nations and tribal-serving organizations to CDC and ATSDR programs, and provides funding for building and improving cross-cutting tribal public health infrastructure.

The Director will serve as the official CDC point-of-contact and authority for American Indian/Alaska Native (AI/AN) public health issues and as a key member of the CSTLTS senior leadership team. The position requires knowledge of the unique and complex cultural, environmental, social, economic, political, and other interrelated factors that affect the health of AI/AN populations.

To apply, visit www.usajobs.gov.

- External candidates may apply to job announcement HHS-CDC-D1-22-11341153.
- The job announcement closes on Thursday, February 3, 2022.

Duties and Responsibilities

- Collaborate and coordinate with Health and Human Services (HHS) and other agency tribal liaisons on HHS-wide tribal activities, such as the Secretary's Tribal Advisory Committee and the Secretary's Intradepartmental Council on Native American Affairs.
- Manage relationships, collaborative activities, and grants with national tribal organizations to inform and advance the mission and goals of CDC specific to promoting health and preventing disease among AI/AN populations.
- Provide executive-level, expert-quality formal and informal reports that address vital tribal issues, multi-functional studies and analytical approaches, expert findings, and cogent, substantive recommendations that are used as the primary basis for key tribal executive-level management decisions.

Improving Community Health Outcomes by Strengthening State, Tribal, Local, and Territorial Health Agencies

CDC's Center for State, Tribal, Local, and Territorial Support (CSTLTS) plays a vital role in helping public health agencies work to enhance their capacity and improve their performance to strengthen the public health system on all levels.

Learn more about CDC's tribal support on CDC's Tribal Health Website.

Centers for Disease
Control and Prevention
Center for State, Tribal, Local,
and Territorial Support